PRESIDENT'S REPORT

I was pleased to run a very successful Dowsing Workshop in July. The women who attended were all very interested, took to the practical work very quickly, and bonded well together as a group.

If you'd like to experience a dowsing workshop let me know and I'll put your name on the list for the next one.

Heather Wilks runs pendulum dowsing workshops for healing and transforming relationships, situations and sometimes even the weather. Let her know if you'd like to be part of one of her dowsing workshops.

Just after our last meeting, we learned Stefan Bock had emergency back surgery. Stefan is our friendly DSV Committee member who looks after our filming and recording needs. A number from the DSV sent healing to speed up his recovery. He's shown signs of improvement, though hasn't yet returned to full strength. We're continuing to picture him happy, fully recovered. Please join us in sending healing to Stefan to maximise the benefits for him.

I was very excited to read a story on Facebook which had been shown on SBS show, "The Feed". You can view it at this link:

https://www.sbs.com.au/news/the-feed/why-i-ve-been-camping-on-a-highway-for-more-than-a-year_1

It addresses the highway between Adelaide and Melbourne being duplicated, including a 12km stretch near Ararat in rural Victoria, where there is sacred Aboriginal land. Understandably this has become an emotional issue and as often happens, facts become blurred. However, it's not quite as clear cut. Some suggest there is a 350 year old direction tree plus a birthing tree which Chris Gerrett spoke about during our last meeting.

The authorities see no reason why these trees should be saved and want to remove them! Others say there's no evidence of the trees being so aged or significant.

I personally believe these trees are too old and important to be bulldozed. Perhaps in our own time, some of us can collectively visualise a protective barrier around the area and picture people visiting and appreciating it as an indigenous spiritual area. As usual with our dowsing it's a good idea to intend for the highest good of all and include mention of "This or something better".

Hope to see you on 25 August 2019.

Lyn Wood, President

OUR NEXT MEETING

We're pleased to be welcoming Angelo Eliades to present to the DSV for the first time on Sunday 25 August.

Angelo is a writer and presenter in the areas of sustainable gardening and permaculture.

Angelo will structure his talk to include:

- The ancient healing practice of the shamanic path, and working with Nature.
 - Understanding what the shaman's spirit allies really are - totem animals, spirit guides and Nature spirits.
 - The etheric and astral worlds, the inhabitants and their interaction with Earth energy lines and human energies.
 - The trials and tribulations of energy clearing work and the differences it can make when done well.
- We look forward to seeing you for Angelo's interesting presentation on Sunday 25 August.

OUR LAST MEETING

The DSV presentation for our last meeting was inspired by an email from DSV member Chris Gerrett about the auras and energies of trees and the land.

Lolita Gunning and Lyn Wood joined Chris to speak about their various experiences on the topic, "The Wonder of Trees".

During the meeting we screened a few interesting videos, including one called "Tree Time Stories", featuring Aboriginal Elder, "Uncle Max": Here is the link to view it:

In 1990, whilst studying the energies of crop circles, Lucy Pringle experienced a miracle healing of a severe shoulder injury. Inspired, she expanded her research to investigate the physical, psychological and energetics effects of these mysteries on people, as well as animals.

Lucy is one of the world's leading crop circle photographers and researchers. She lives in Hampshire, England and lectures internationally. She has authored a number of well-acclaimed books on crop circles and other subjects.

Thanks Bev Ellison for providing this article for the Newsletter. She suggests that, as dowsers we would certainly find pictures of different crop circles and dowse them to see which photograph would be suitable to sit with for 20 to 30 minutes to see what affect that has on our aches and pains. In fact, there are many wonderful photographs on Lucy's site and they are available for purchase. I wasn't inclined to include them with this article as they are clearly copyrighted. Ed.

REMOTE DOWSING

By Heather Wilks

My interest in remote/absent/distant healing began in the late 90s, before I'd ever heard of that, or dowsing. A friend asked me to send a healing intention for her relative who was in a coma in another country. The two of us sat at our landlines, each at the other end of our phones, without speaking, just intending. At the time I kept hoping I was doing it “properly”! It was something so new and foreign to me.

The next day I received a call to say that the relative was out of her coma and that the doctors were calling it a miracle. I was hooked.

The next experience I recall happened while I was learning Reiki with Bernadette Saulenier, former Vice-President of the DSV.

As an exercise in the class I sent healing to a seven-year old girl, many suburbs away. She had severe depression and I later learned easily attracted entities. A few days later I was amazed when her mother, a good friend, said that her daughter had spontaneously told her, “Heather is doing something for me.” Neither of them even knew I was at a workshop far away, let alone learning about remote healing.

As a result of those two experiences I’ve never looked back. Unfortunately it doesn’t always work so dramatically. Though as nothing seems to “always” work, I just accept it and do some more. something, it could.

I’ve been pondering more about why some remote work makes such a dramatic difference. I’ve come to the conclusion that it’s better when either the person (or anyone in a situation receiving help with changes) is onboard. Or when someone close to them is holding the space. It is important to hold the vision of the person or problem as having already been healed.

Recently there was a magical outcome when a client phoned in great distress with a migraine. I’d taught her to dowse in 2016 and she had totally embraced dowsing with her own energy work. Naturally, when someone is in such agony, it can be difficult to resolve something so serious for themselves. She asked if I would dowse for her migraine. I knew she’d suffered with them for many years and I’d done other healing work with her using various modalities. This one was particularly severe. As it was, I had just had an appointment postponed, so was able to drop everything and dowse for her at once. I had quickly charted quite a detailed approach and 20 minutes later she called to thank me. I said I hadn’t finished so she urged me to keep going. I feel that the combination of her trust and gratitude were significant factors in her turn around.

Then, just a few days ago I received a text from her, saying there was a gift on my doorstep. She had wanted to let me know that she hadn’t had another migraine in over six weeks, which is a real record. I am so happy that the dowsing has worked so extremely well for her and was thrilled to receive a glorious bunch of wintery green fronds with stems of Lilli Pilli red berries.
