PRESIDENT'S REPORT

How pleased I am to report that we have a new DSV Secretary. Thanks to Monica Subai for volunteering! We are so pleased to welcome Monica to our midst.

Hard to believe we've just had the Spring Equinox. In typical Melbourne fashion, we're being teased with warmer, sunny days, then it's back to wintry weather. Of course it has been wonderful to have such a lot of rain, particularly in the drought areas of the State of Victoria.

Despite all this water here from rainfall, our recent water bill had doubled! It was such a shock. My husband and I certainly hadn't needed to water the garden. With the help of my dowsing I suspected a broken water pipe. Something I've only ever dowsed for once before.

Dowsing with my rods and later with a pendulum, I visualised water pipes and asked to find where there might be a leak. Unfortunately the plumber hasn't returned yet to go under the house to confirm my findings. Stay tuned. Will my dowsing be right?

Meanwhile, I've organised an Advanced Dowsing Workshop. It's one for experienced dowers who would like to learn about clearing unwanted energies from houses and land. The Workshop will be held at my place in Beaconsfield on Friday, 18 November, from 10 am till 3 pm. Please contact me to book in.

I am also setting up a dowsing Field Trip to Mount Dandenong. I have a list of interested people and if you'd like to add your name, just email or call me. It will be held in either late October or early November, likely to be on a Saturday. Looking forward to seeing you on Sunday 16 October for the next DSV meeting.

Lyn Wood, President

OUR LAST MEETING

At our last meeting in August we welcomed Kevin Hughes, a progressive farmer from Koonwarra, near Leongatha in rural Victoria. His topic was "Soil to Soul".

Although he'd learned about treating soil through his dowsing, Kevin admitted that he doesn't go onto a farmer's property with a pendulum in hand. He'd expect to get "short shrift" (rapid and unsympathetic dismissal Ed.) if he did. Yet it was dowsing and meditation practices that helped him determine what could be changed to bring about dramatic improvements to the soil to encourage a healthy sustainable farming system.

For the last 25 years he has focused on developing this awareness in other farmers, encouraging and guiding them to make the same connection, to improve their soil health and productivity with more sustainable management practices.

MERCURY RETROGRADE

By Heather Wilks, DSV Vic-President

When I first learned about Mercury going retrograde it explained so much about previously unexplained hiccups and delays. The discovery haunted me until I was saved by international dowser, Raymon Grace. In his book, "Techniques That Work For Me", he describes very simply how easy it is to neutralise the negative effects.

In the recent Mercury retrograde in Virgo, I found I needed to dowse for some days in a row. I've learned that there are actually various phases before and after a Mercury retrograde.

When any planet is described as being retrograde it simply means it has stalled. It appears to be going backwards, but that's not actually the case. It's all about appearances.

In Mercury's case the downside is its impact on all forms of communication, technology, transport, plans, purchases and even contracts. The upside is that it's a time for pause, review, reflections. However with all the distractions of delayed messages, computer, modem, printer, phone and/or car problems, it can be quite a challenge to notice benefits from the opportunity for "review".

Mercury usually retros three times a year, occasionally four times. This is a year we'll experience a fourth starting in December and continuing to January 2017. Yes, during all the holidays, so it's a good idea to be prepared with your pendulum.
