PRESIDENT'S REPORT

We're approaching the last DSV meeting for the year. I hope you've learned some new techniques and have enjoyed talking to other dowsers at each of our meetings in 2010.

Our guest speaker for Sunday 28th November is from the NSW Dowsers. François Capmeil is eager to share his experiences dowsing the Ley Lines in Europe. I'm looking forward to his presentation and feel sure you will be too. You might like to invite a friend or two along.

I've been reading some new books on dowsing sourced from the British Society of Dowsers. www.britishdowsers.org Two are now available in our DSV Library.

One I'm currently enjoying is "Healing Sick Houses" by Roy & Ann Proctor. This British couple have been dowsing properties together for some time, and now have so many requests that they dowse and heal properties from a distance. It's a most useful book if you'd like to know more about geopathic stress and remedies. www.procterdowsing.co.us

The other new book now in the DSV Library is "Dowsing – the ultimate guide for the 21st century" by Elizabeth Brown. It also promises to be a fascinating read.

I'd like to officially thank Committee Member Tony Hill for all his assistance in sourcing the new projector and sound equipment on our behalf. If you attended our last meeting when Tony gave a wonderful presentation, you'll have noticed that everything operated so smoothly.

Just to let you know that we have a field trip organised for early December to dowse a property (with the attendees already committed). Another one or two will be held in the new year.

On behalf of our Committee, I'd like to wish you and your family a peace-filled Christmas and happy, healthy New Year.

Lyn Wood, President

OUR NEXT MEETING

The DSV is delighted that François Capmeil will present on "Exploring the Ley Lines of Europe" at our next meeting scheduled for 28th November.

François Capmeil

François is the Secretary of the Dowzers Society of NSW Inc. Some years ago he became fascinated with Ley line and as a result, he and his wife travelled to visit his parents in Paris, going on to visit Mont Saint Michel in Brittany – a significant pilgrimage site in France where the Apollo and Athena Ley lines cross.

Mont Saint Michel, Brittany, France

François will share the fascinating experience that he and his wife had when dowsing to locate those Ley lines.

They were surrounded by tourists when they went on to visit the chapel 'Notre Dame Sous la Terre' (Our Lady Underground) and as if that wasn't enough to interrupt some serious dowsing, they encountered a bit of resistance to the dowsing rods by a tour guide who wouldn't accept their explanation that there was divine energy there.

On route back to Paris to continue their search for the Apollo Ley line, they visited the Le Mans cathedral with its unique Y-shaped flying buttresses. François will tell us about the unusual experience they had during this part of their travels.

He will also talk about another trip to Europe where they visited Cornwall in the UK. This region has its own Mount Saint Michael on a small island opposite the town of Marazion.

Mount Saint Michael, Cornwall, England

François will also tell us about the last stages of that second European Ley line trip, when they left England and flew to France to re-visit Mont Saint Michel in Brittany. This time they had more success in exploring the energy without disruptive influences like noisy tourists and disgruntled tour guides.

This is your opportunity to hear first hand about the energies of such special locales and

Ley lines. Make it a date to join us at the DSV on 28th November. For further details go to:

OUR LAST MEETING

At our last meeting DSV Committee member Tony Hill presented on "Physics Meets Metaphysics In The World of The Dowser".

As a physicist and a dowser, Tony's in a distinctly unique position to discuss such a powerful and intriguing topic.

He believes that as dowzers it is in our own interests to protect ourselves, without the need for devices or special systems to do it for us. We have the ability to attract the best for ourselves.

Tony conducted a number of interesting experiments to demonstrate the points he was making and these were enthusiastically received by the large number of people attending the DSV meeting.

Tony Hill presenting

Tony suggested that by taking the feeling of a smile and placing it in different parts of the body, as we picture the energy of that smile, it can help release any tension build up that may otherwise block us in our dowsing.
