PRESIDENT'S REPORT

In early 2002 I became aware of some difficulties within the Dowsing Society of Victoria and decided that I would attend the Annual General Meeting to support my friends who were working hard to preserve it at the time.

My intention was to just attend the meeting and I was not planning on becoming involved at all, as I felt with the development of the Pure Sound Essences that my wife Mary and I market I would have enough to do.

Well as history shows, something intervened and in fact I left that DSV meeting as President of your Society. It was indeed an honor to be elected and I very much appreciated the faith shown in me, but it was truly a surprise.

That was six years ago now and I feel the time has come for me to relinquish the position and hand it on to another Committee member to carry on leading the DSV.

Of course a lot has changed since 2002. These days no one can take on an office-bearer position without having spent at least 12 months participating on the DSV Committee to become familiar with its workings.

In my six years with the DSV I have had the privilege of being involved with some very fine people, including Members of the Committee itself and indeed Members of the Society.

My years as President have been a lot of fun and very rewarding and I'm very grateful for the support of those who have participated so actively on the various Committees.

If you take a moment to have a look at the back page of this newsletter you'll see the names of those who are currently Committee Members. Many of the people who have been my collective right arm in recent times.

Although I have now moved to Healesville, I intend to remain with the Society for many years to come. However I have made the decision not to stand for the Presidency at the Annual General Meeting (AGM) on 27th April this year. That's a role, ready and waiting for one of our able Committee Members to embrace - and further the development of the DSV.

I hope to see you at the AGM as I step down from my role. And I look forward to welcoming the new President, as well as the new office bearers and perhaps new Committee Members for the 2008/2009 year ahead.

Thank you all very much for your support over the years. See you ALL at the AGM.

OUR NEXT MEETING

We are delighted to show another Raymon Grace DVD, called “Energising Your Life” at our next meeting. Raymon has written to say how pleased he is that we are again presenting his work at the DSV and we are very glad to be able to support his work by spreading his amazing techniques around the world. As before, we’re arranging to hire equipment.

In this newsletter, Carolyn Koludrovic, the DSV's Dowsing Instructor, has provided a review of this particular DVD from Raymon Grace.

We look forward to seeing you at the AGM. If you're a new member, or perhaps unfamiliar with Raymon's work, this meeting is a “must”. The energy levels were sky high during and after our last screening of one of his DVDs. So come along and have your energy lifted on 27th April !!

Raymon Grace is a native of the Appalachian Mountains of Virginia and has been studying forms of healing since 1973. Since then he has treated hundreds of people from around the world for many different illnesses, both physically and emotionally.

OUR LAST MEETING

At our last meeting we welcomed Dianne Ward, who presented to us on the Dreamspell Calendar (13 moon Natural Time), which draws on aspects of both the Mayan and the Gregorian calendars.

Stuart Kingsford provided a brief history of the Gregorian Calendar, the standard one used.

Everyone who attended the meeting was fascinated by the depth of the information covered. Many took advantage of having their Galactic Signature provided later by email.

DSV MEMBERSHIPS ARE DUE

Please note that all memberships are due at the next DSV meeting on 27th April, 2008.

You can renew your membership at this meeting in person, or by mailing a cheque or postal order with your details to The DSV at P.O. Box 2635 Mount Waverley, Vic 3149.

Alternatively, if you would prefer to renew via Direct Funds Transfer (DFT), please check the information on the back of this newsletter.

We regret that credit card payments are not available.

Whether you're mailing or emailing (re DFT) remember to include your name, address and phone number/s. Please indicate whether you're renewing as a full member, for a family, or a concession (a copy of your concession identification needs to be provided please).

NOTE: There are a number of members whose membership lapsed in the past year. Rather than delete you from our lists, we encourage you to renew now so that you continue to receive the DSV newsletter regularly.

A SIMPLE BLESSING PROCESS

By Joey Korn

Feel free to share this with others.

In my dowsing research over the past thirteen years, I have found that the most powerful way to keep the energies around you, in your home or office, balanced and beneficial is to keep your own energies balanced and beneficial, as well as those who share the space with you.

This includes the Earth energies associated with what dowzers call "geopathic stress." I've devised a very simple blessing formula to help you to integrate the blessing process easily into your life throughout each day. You can use it to bless others, your home, and objects you wear.

If you will include these five components in your blessings, and do it often, you or whoever you bless will stay energetically balanced, as will most of the energies around you. Staying balanced will help you heal and help you react more appropriately to issues and circumstances in your life.

Joey Korn

Try to let your negative thoughts and emotions remind you to say this blessing. Negative thoughts and emotions are what I call "anti-blessings." They have the exact opposite effect as blessings. Turn your anti-blessings into blessings. And turn your prayers from pleading into beckoning, asking God to bless you with energy to help you accomplish whatever you want to in your life.

The five components of this Simple Blessing Process are:

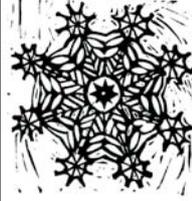

1. Address the Divine in some way.
2. Ask to be blessed or charged with energy.
3. Make a statement of what you want to accomplish.
4. Express gratitude.
5. Close the blessing in some way.

Each component is important. The first three are to make it work; the next two are for you. It is important to feel and express gratitude and to turn our blessings over to a Higher Power. So here's a simple blessing:

Dear God (or however you address the Divine) Please bless (or charge) me (or someone else or an object you wear) with energy to bring healing and balance to my/his/her/our complete being - physically, emotionally, mentally and spiritually,*
Thank you, Amen

*This is where you could add a statement requesting help with something specific that you want to bring into your life, but it's not necessary. Just state what you want help with in your own words, if you like. Remember that the blessing is complete within itself, as it is above.

DVD REVIEW

By Carolyn Koludrovic, DSV Training Officer

"Energising Your Life" – Raymon Grace To be shown on Sunday, 27th April, 2008.

In "Energising Your Life", Raymon Grace presents an extensive range of material in a comprehensive, yet easily understood format. Many aspects of healing are addressed with the key concept that a healthy body is supported by a healthy mind.

Raymon talks of his own experiences to support these concepts, with his intent that his mission is to help other people to help other people.

With pet dogs and horses in the background, Raymon demonstrates further dowzing methods with reference to his excellent e-book "Techniques That Work For Me".

In this fascinating DVD, Raymon Grace demonstrates clearing a property with the aid of a bobber. He discusses the concept of energy as impressed upon matter, explaining that energy is influenced by the emotions of people and he explains this in relation to everyday life.

He discusses geopathic stress and his ideas about neutralising the effects of geopathic stress.

Raymon also addresses the spirit of emotions, frequencies of energies and life force in relation to the detrimental effects that negative aspects of these may have on our own energy and the positive aspects of an ideal frequency for your body, health, home and more.

The effects of mass consciousness, the earth's energy shifts, and psychic cords are also covered in this DVD. Lots of great information !!

In his DVD Raymon also discusses spiritual aspects of life and his beliefs that negative spiritual influences, once removed, result in improved living conditions.

Raymon's presentation of "Energising Your Life" is a treat for dowsers. Don't miss seeing it at our next DSV meeting on Sunday, 27th April.

A DIVINE WORLD

By DSV Member, Mick Moran of Learmonth, Vic.

This is a story detailing some of my experiences with divining (Ed note: divining is more commonly known today as "dowsing".) I have always believed in water divining, but some experiences have surprised the hell out of me and left me with more questions than answers.

Many of the things I can now detect I never thought possible until recently, so it has come as a complete surprise to me as to what some people can detect simply by holding a piece of wire, or a maybe a pendulum, or in some cases simply by the way their body reacts without holding any implement at all.

I first discovered I could divine water in early 2004. I wanted to sink a bore to supply water to my father's house, so I asked my nephew, who could divine water, to do the divining for me. He walked around with two L shaped rods made of fencing wire. When the rods crossed he said that there was a stream of water below. As he walked around the wires continued to cross, and he said there were a number of streams in this area.

Some 20 years earlier, I had watched an old bloke divine water using a single piece of wire and found it fascinating. I asked if I could have a go but found it wouldn't work for me. Having watched my nephew for some time, I asked if I could try. He showed me how to hold the rods and said walk around and see what happens.

To my surprise the rods crossed. I tried again with the same result. I then asked my nephew to see if he thought there was water there. He went over the same spot and sure enough he found water in exactly the same position.

For the next half an hour we walked around and followed a stream from an existing bore some 50 metres away. We decided on a position and dug a small hole. I had to remove a number of fruit trees that were in the way of the drilling rig, and when they had gone I moved the position of the hole about 1 metre.

Learmonth, near Ballarat, Vic, Australia

About 3 months later the drilling rig arrived and I showed the rig owner where I wanted the hole dug. He asked why I had decided on that position, and I said I divined it with a couple of pieces of fencing wire. He said he didn't believe in water divining but would dig there anyway. (I found out later he was joking as he also does water divining.) He started to dig and didn't strike water until about 60 feet. There wasn't much water at that level so we went deeper. At 140 feet the water flow had increased to approximately 550 gallons per hour. At 150 feet we struck clay and I was told that there was no point in going any deeper as there wouldn't be any more water below this level.

I had the water analysed and found it to be beautiful drinking water.

Water Boring at Waubra

I did some divining around my home and around the township of Learmonth (in rural Victoria, Australia) to try and learn as much as I could and to get some practice. I found I only needed one divining rod and I also found I could detect water pipes. I found this fascinating but found I couldn't learn any more, so I gave up.

One day while riding my pushbike around Learmonth I noticed the local football club was drilling a bore to supply water for the football oval. I went over and talked to the bloke who divined the position for the bore. He said he thought the water was at 230 feet but they had to go down to 250 feet to get the best water. I asked how he determined the water was at 230 feet. He said he used his divining rod to tell the depth. Again I asked how.

He said if he stands on top of the stream, facing the direction of the stream the rod starts moving up and down. I again asked how he could tell the depth of the water. He said every time the rod moved up and down it represented one foot in depth. I thought about it and decided it was a load of rubbish. However when I rode home I decided I would try it out anyway.

I detected a stream in my backyard and stood over it with the divining rod stationary. To my surprise the rod started bobbing up and down. It indicated the stream was 65 feet down. I found another stream and tried again. This time it showed the stream was 160 feet down. I was very skeptical of the whole thing so I thought I would try it on the bore that had been dug at my father's house. Again the rods started bobbing up and down. It stopped moving at 150. I knew the bore was 150 feet deep so I was still very skeptical. I decided to go to the football club and try again at the new bore. I knew it was 250 feet deep so I asked my wife to come with me. I had her count how many times the rod moved up and down. When the rods started moving I turned my focus on other things so I wouldn't know how many times the rod had moved. When it finally stopped I asked my wife the final count. She said the wire had moved up and down 250 times.

I was still not convinced that this could be happening so I contacted a local farmer who had a large irrigation bore. I didn't know the depth of the bore but I knew it was fairly deep. I explained what I wanted to do and I asked if it would be okay. He said if I could get within 50 feet of the correct depth he would be very surprised. He took me to the bore and I got my divining rod and started counting. After some time the rod stopped at 460. I asked if the bore was any where near 460 feet deep. He said they had drilled to 500 feet but the water didn't increase beyond 485 feet. I was very surprised and very happy to get within 15 feet of the water depth.

The farmer wasn't sure what to believe so he asked me to try another bore on his property. When we arrived at the bore I walked around it looking for the stream but could find nothing. I asked if there was water in the bore, and he said there was. Again I walked around the bore and had no reaction on the divining rod. I said there was no water here but the farmer insisted there was. After some discussion we decided to drop a small stone down the hole and see if it hit water. We dropped the stone and waited. Nothing, the bore was dry. I'm not sure if the farmer was just testing me or not, but I was pretty happy with the outcome.

At the end of 2006 I was asked to find water for a bloke at Evansford. He wanted to put a bore in his front yard and was wondering if I could find a suitable spot. I had a walk around and I detected a stream running right through his yard. I have read that in those old gold mining areas the water is often salty, so I thought I'd try something I had read about on the internet. A woman had claimed that if she put an old penny in her hand she could tell if water was salty or not. She didn't explain exactly what happens when the water was salty so I knew I would have to experiment a bit.

When divining I remove anything that could interfere with the rod, such as a watch, jewelry or anything that could come into contact with my bare skin. I stood over the stream and estimated the water to be approximately 130 feet deep. I then placed a penny in my left hand to see what would happen. I found the divining rod wouldn't bob up and down. I placed the penny in my pocket and watched the rod start moving again.

The moment I touched the penny the rod stopped. I didn't know if that indicated salty water or not, but I told the property owner that it was a possibility. I would never charge for the divining I do as I could never guarantee that there would be water. I usually say that if it was me, I would drill on the spot I'd marked, but in the end it's up to the owner of the property to decide because they are the ones spending the money.

The bore was dug six months later and they had to go down to 160 feet to get the most water, but unfortunately for the owner the water was quite salty. My depth was a bit out but my feelings about salty water were correct. I now know that estimating the depth of the water is only a guide for me and to my way of thinking can't be considered accurate. As for the penny, the jury is still out on that one, however holding a penny while over fresh water makes no difference to the divining rod.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS AND ENERGETIC FACTORS

by Miroslav Provod, 2008
www.miroslavprovod.com

The police register in their records sections of roads and motorways where there is inexplicably higher number of traffic accidents. One of these localities is part of a communication E7 near Panensky Tynec in the north of Czech Republic. It is a well arranged section, however, there have been 16 deadly car accidents since 2001. Nobody has yet explained why the accidents occur repeatedly only in some places, especially when many of these places are well arranged where nobody would expect accidents to occur.

We could get closer to the cause of the car accidents if we put together these mysterious places with the findings of research, which is described at <http://www.miroslavprovod.com>

These are the same sets of phenomena as have the megalithic or religious structures - matter placed in an energetic place with greater energetic potential gains energy by itself. The only difference is in the fact that megalithic and religious structures were placed into energetic locations intentionally. The matter of the communication where the accidents occur frequently intersects the energetic location just by a coincidence without the knowledge of the projector.

It could be proved experimentally that the cosmic energy is transformed during the spontaneous transport onto cellular membranes into electric energy in the same way as it's transformed during the transport onto the electrodes of some high capacitance capacitors.

When a driver of the motor vehicle drives through the section of the communication which is characteristic by the increased energetic voltage there is an increase of electric potential difference on his cellular membranes. However it's critical in most cases with what degree of excess voltage did the driver drive through the critical place. This together with many previous energetic contacts, which add up, brings negative changes in the thinking of the driver.

Editor's note: Perhaps recognising the significance of such energy around roads with a history of accidents could present an excellent opportunity to use our Pendulum Scrambling to clear it. Remember, Raymon Grace teaches the scrambling method in his fabulous e-book "Techniques That Work For Me".

SIX MINUTE NAP MAY BOOST MEMORY

Source: BBC

Even the shortest of catnaps may be enough to improve performance in memory tests, say German scientists.

Just six minutes "shut-eye" for volunteers was followed by significantly better recall of words, New Scientist magazine reported.

"Ultra-short" sleep could launch memory processing in the brain, they suggested.

One UK researcher disagreed, saying that longer sleep was needed to have an impact on memory.

Dozens of studies have probed the relationship between sleep and memory, with clear evidence that body's natural sleep-wake cycle plays an important role.

The team from the University of Dusseldorf wanted to see just how short a sleep could have any discernable impact.

They used a group of students who were asked to remember a set of words, then given an hour's break before testing.

During that hour, some of the students were allowed to sleep for approximately six minutes, while the rest were kept asleep. Remarkably, on waking, the napping students performed better in the memory test.

Some theories suggests that the processing of memories takes place in deep sleep, a phase which does not normally start until at least 20 minutes after falling asleep.

However, the team, led by Dr Olaf Lahl, said that it was possible that the moment of falling asleep triggered a process in the brain that continued regardless of how long the person actually stayed awake.

"To our knowledge, this demonstrates for the first time that an ultra-brief sleep episode provides an effective memory enhancement," he wrote.

Professor Jim Horne, from the Sleep Research Centre at Loughborough University, said that while the study was "interesting", he was yet to be convinced that the effect was purely one of memory enhancement.

"The idea that memory could be enhanced in just six minutes is a quite unique finding and one has to be rather cautious about it.

"There is quite a bit of evidence that memory processing probably takes place more than six minutes into sleep."
