DSV philosophy: Through awakening consciousness, we are empowered with knowledge and skills to unconditionally serve others

OUR NEXT MEETING HAS BEEN CANCELLED ~~Sunday 29 November 2020~~

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Here I am writing my last DSV Report for the year. We only held one DSV meeting during 2020, back in February. What a year it's been! Hopefully our meetings will resume in full from February 2021. Naturally we still need to follow the regulations for group gatherings, as set by our Victorian Government and Monash Council.

Happily, at the time of writing we've had 14 days with zero new covid-19 cases in Victoria. I've been putting out there that it's truly gone. Our thoughts really do create our reality. We become what we think about. As Dr. Joe Dispenza says so clearly, "Where your attention goes, your energy follows". Of course, we still need to be careful about hygiene and that's fair enough. For me, the worst aspect of this has been not being allowed to hug or kiss our friends or some family members.

During these last seven months or so, I've been able to view talks from overseas conferences and join in with the NSW Dowsters meetings via Zoom. This is something that wouldn't have been available if we hadn't been in lockdown. It's wonderful that so many events have been shared on the internet. I hope you've been able to avail yourself of these experiences. I've also joined Heather Wilks, along with a few DSV members and other like-minded people – to dowse with Frances Peterson (a former dowsing student of Heather's), on Facebook via Zoom on Fridays. Together we've been doing our best to Intend the end of the virus and also to dispel fear, anger, exhaustion and other associated emotions. If you'd like to join us, just contact Heather: heather

I hope you are appreciating more of nature and are raising your vibrations to match the Earth's own vibration – rising, preparing us for an increase in Light and encouraging us to enter the Age of Aquarius and the Fifth dimension.

I wish you a Happy Christmas, Happy Hanukkah and/or a happy time, whatever festive holidays call to you at this time.

TAMING THE DRAGON

Thanks to DSV member, Bev Ellison for another welcome contribution. Article by Willy Lansing.

On a farm in rural eastern Iowa in the US, a farmer was perplexed as to why his calves held in a certain pen would not thrive as well as others. They were sick more often, and developed rougher coats of hair than calves placed in pens nearby. When he moved them out of the pen, they would do much better, but when he returned them the problems would recur.

To “correct” them he places wooden, six-pointed stars at the points where the energy lines enter and leave the site. Resembling the Star of David, each star functions as a vortex. The pattern of joints in the construction of each of these shapes determines the “positive” or “negative” spin on the energy that flows through it, depending on how the star is oriented at the site.

“I hang them up, positive and negative, on each line that needs it. In those pens where the calves were doing bad, there were two negative energy lines crossing right in the centre and where they crossed over was the hot spot,” he continued. “After I treated them, they became the best pens. The calves’ coats got shiny and their weight gain picked up.”

UNITED AT LAST

Thanks to DSV Life Member, Mick Moran for this welcome contribution.

This story started about three years ago when I received a phone call from my friend Nadia. She asked me if I could check out a primary school in Melbourne, which was established in 1927. Nadia had contacted me because she had two granddaughters attending and there were lots of problems at the school. Most seemed to stem from a newly appointed principal at the school.

Nadia told me she only had one granddaughter left at the school, Sophia. Like many youngsters, she was very bright, sensitive and psychic. Sophia, was in grade 2. She had a problem going to the toilet in the main building of the school. As soon as she got home from school, she'd run to get to the toilet. She became braver after talking about it with her mother and confided in a few friends.

One girl named Summer, came from a clairvoyant family. To this family, the invisible world was very real. Summer told Sophie, “Oh, that must be the spirit of the girl who runs to me when the bell rings and we're standing in line.

When Sophia and Summer's mothers found out about this, they decided to look into the past history of the land the school was built on.

They went to the local Historical Society. There, an older volunteer, told them the tragic story that she had heard years before. There had been a small homestead on that exact land. The home was occupied by a husband and wife and two children. The oldest child was a nine-year-old girl named Maree. The other child was a baby boy, who was about fifteen months old.

One day both parents had to go out, leaving Maree in charge of her little brother.

No one really knows what happened on that fateful day, except that the house caught fire and both children died in the flames. I was able to help Maree and her baby brother to leave, allowing the two children to finally be reunited at last and at peace.

DOWSING A FLAT CLOCK BATTERY

By Heather Wilks, DSV Vice-President and Newsletter Editor

When so many shops were closed during Melbourne's recent strict Stage 4 covid conditions, so many items we just take for granted couldn't be accessed.

I have two travel clocks, one for the bathroom and one on my office desk. (I often find that quicker to check, rather than going to my computer or phone.) When the office travel clock stopped quite soon into the restrictions, I put it aside and had the bathroom clock doing double duty.

Then its battery stopped, but I just happened to notice there was a flicker of a bit of spasmodic ticking. So, I dowsed. I kept it very simple. In the No direction, I scrambled the frequency of the clock's very low battery level. Then in the Yes direction, I transformed the energy to expand the battery power to its optimum best until I had an opportunity to get a new battery installed.

It worked, though a day later I needed to dowse again. Easy enough. After about three times, the clock continued.

Then I had the bright idea to put the other clock next to it, for entrainment to encourage it to start again too. No luck at all. Instead, doing that just managed to stop the one that had been working. So, I put the one with the totally flat battery away and dowsed to bring the other back to life.

Once the shops reopened I bought a new battery for the clock that certainly needed it. The other one continued working for almost four weeks, by which time I figured it deserved a totally new battery.

I've dowsed before on a low battery in my mobile phone when it had suddenly died and I was expecting an important call. The power of Intention certainly helped that over the line!

By the way, my dowsing to revive those travel clock batteries had another real benefit. I saw it as proof positive that we are so much more powerful than we often know. Years ago, I learned from one of our favourite dowsers, Raymon Grace, that dowsing sometimes needs to be done more than once. In fact, often. He also pointed out that it doesn't always work. Yet we need to do it anyway.

I had both of those examples laid out before me with those clock battery experiences!
